ADVANTAGES & BENEFITS OF OTHM QUALIFICATIONS

There are many advantages for OTHM certification holders, especially for individuals who do not possess a university degree. OTHM qualifications provide an alternative pathway for skills recognition and career development. Degree holders may also benefit from OTHM certification, provided they meet the required criteria and standards set by OTHM UK.

Some of the key benefits and advantages of holding an OTHM UK certification include:

1. The certification demonstrates that holders have attained a recognised level of training and/or experience in Technical and Vocational Education and Training (TVET), including areas such as automation, microprocessors, artificial intelligence, robotics, and related fields.
2. It supports job applications, career advancement, and employment opportunities in multinational companies both locally and internationally.
3. A country with an adequate number of skilled TVET-trained workers is more likely to attract foreign companies to establish their operations.
4. Internationally recognised and well-trained certified workers contribute to national human capital and have greater opportunities for overseas employment, generating income for themselves and their country.
5. OTHM certificates are recognised by many foreign institutions and universities.
6. A well-trained TVET workforce strengthens national economic growth, including the development of sectors such as tourism and hospitality management.
7. TVET training and certification enhance a country's competitive position in the global economy.

OTHM QUALIFICATIONS

OTHM Regulations

OTHM is a UK-based awarding organisation that is regulated by the Office of the Qualification and Examination Regulation (Ofqual). Ofqual is a non-ministerial government organisation that regulates qualifications, examinations and assessments in England. Ofqual collaborates closely with the UK government and Department of Education on general qualifications, such as GCSEs and A Levels. As an independent regulatory body, Ofqual is responsible for ensuring the integrity and standards of the qualifications. It reports directly to the UK Parliament. OTHM holds a prestigious status as a full member of the Federation of Awarding Bodies (FAB).

Is OTHM qualifications/certifications acknowledged by MQA?

OTHM qualifications are not affiliated with local accreditation bodies such as the Malaysian Qualifications Agency (MQA) or the Malaysian Board of Technologists (MBOT). As such, they are not subject to local accreditation under these institutions.

However, learners who hold OTHM qualifications may apply to pursue further education at overseas institutions, subject to the entry requirements of their chosen universities. Applicants are required to fulfil the academic and admission criteria set by the respective international institutions.
